OFFICE OF TRAINING

MISSION AND FUNCTIONS

The mission of the Office of Training, as stated in Agency Regulation 25X1A [redacted] dated 18 January 1954, is as follows:

"The Director of Training shall develop and direct Agency training programs and review Office training programs; represent the Director of Central Intelligence on subjects related to training; participate in the formulation of the policies and plans of the Career Service Board; determine requirements for Agency training facilities in the United States; in accordance with the applicable provisions of Public Law 110 (81st Congress, 1st Session), provide for Agency participation in training programs at appropriate external facilities, public and private, in the United States and abroad; and establish and maintain standards of achievement for Agency personnel in Agency training programs."

The Office of Training is in every sense a service organization for all of the Offices of the Agency. Its basic purpose is to improve the capability of personnel to serve the Agency. New professional personnel recruited by the Agency must be regarded as laymen in the field of intelligence no matter how qualified they may be in their respective professional fields. They must be taught new knowledge, new substantive concepts, and new skills and techniques. Through training, their particular professional competence must be related to the field of intelligence and subordinated to it so that they will use their professional competence as intelligence officers.

The mission of the Office of Training must be appraised against this background. Not only must an extensive and diverse training effort be continued but research and planning must go hand in hand with that effort, both in established and contemplated areas of Training. To this substantive and administrative task must be added the requirement for close coordination and liaison with every office of the Agency and with the Departments of State and Defense and appropriate non-governmental institutions.

The Office of Training consists of the Director of Training, Deputy Director of Training, three Staffs and four Schools. Training is conducted both in the headquarters area [redacted] [redacted] Organization charts and a brief description of the functions of each component of the Office follow.

d. Organize, supervise, and administer a Training Evaluation Branch to participate in the analysis of training evaluation requirements, primarily to determine how various psychological techniques may best be utilized, and to develop training evaluation procedures in order to provide a meaningful and complete record of what a student learned and what personality characteristics he revealed during training. This record is used by OTR, the student's supervisor, the Personnel Office, and various Agency boards concerned with selection.

e. Organize, supervise and administer a Research Branch to: develop and supervise the pre-training testing program, the Junior Officer testing training program, and the language aptitude testing programs; maintain liaison with all non-Agency psychological research activities in order to take advantage of new developments and new techniques which may be used; develop new testing and research programs; and provide technical support to other branches of the Staff in experimental design, statistical evaluations, machine record procedures, and other technical matters.

f. Organize, supervise and administer a Testing Services Branch to: conduct all testing programs for clerical applicants and clerical personnel entering on duty, including a test of their skills to determine whether clerical training is required; and to conduct testing programs for professional personnel when requested by the Agency Personnel Office in connection with the original assignment or the re-assignment of such personnel.

g. Organize, supervise, and administer special task force psychologists in the Office of the Chief to provide for those psychological services which are not reasonable functions of any of the three branches.
